

TotalCare Wellness Packages: Puppies

Puppies are usually adopted around 8 weeks of age. Examination, vaccination, worming, and parasite control should begin at this time. If a puppy is younger, early examination and treatment is beneficial. Puppies should be seen at 3 week intervals until the age of 4 months. The last 2 visits must be no more than 3-4 weeks apart. If vaccinations are begun for a puppy older than 4 months, 3 week boosters are still needed.

Each puppy plan visit includes a complete physical examination by the doctor. Fecal examinations are performed at regular intervals to detect intestinal parasites. Vaccinations are administered on schedule. At the first visit, every puppy receives a free initial dose of heartworm and flea preventative, as well as a free bag of Royal Canin® puppy food.

The basic puppy package includes important baseline vaccinations - including Distemper and Rabies - which are required for all dogs. Bordetella (or kennel cough) is a serious contagious disease which is epidemic in this community. Any dog in contact with other dogs is at risk for this infection; immunization is required for any hospital or lodging stay. Lyme Disease is transmitted by ticks - dogs who visit wooded areas are at increased risk. Basic and Standard packages are completed around 4 months of age, while the Optimum package lasts a full year, continuing after the initial series to include full-service spays or neuters. See below for a thorough explanation of each package.
